

Earth Science World Image Bank Commercial Account Activation

AGI is pleased to offer accounts for commercial entities who frequently license images through the Earth Science World Image Bank (ESWIB). We offer two account options, a standing credit card account, or a deposit account. Upon your authorization, we will allow up to 4 people per organization to license images using your account.

Standing credit accounts require that current and valid credit card information be kept on file with the American Geological Institute. This card will be charged for all image licenses made by any personnel authorized to do so.

If you need to establish a deposit account, your company will need to open the account with a check payable to the American Geological Institute of at least $250. Once the balance falls below $100, a notice requesting replenishment of account funds will be sent. If no replenishment is received, once the account is empty, the account will be terminated.

All image licenses will be charged on an individual basis and invoices for each license will be distributed indicating charges applied.
